DAILEY SUSPENDED.

Miss Hannan Insists Her Charge Against the Officer Is True.

But for Her Mother's Arrest It Would Not Have Been Made.

Lizzie Lawlor, an Important Witness, Is Not to Be Found.

Some doubt has developed to-day as to the real facts in the case of Roundman Dailey, F. Dailey, of the Delancey street police station, who is accused of having assaulted Mamie Hannan, the pretty sixteen-year-old daughter of Mrs. Annie Hannan, of 318 Monroe street.

The girl still insists that her charge is true, she tells a straightforward story and is specific in her allegations. Mamie declares that Lizzie Lawlor, a sister of Policeman Dailey, of the East Twenty-second street station, was with her in Joseph Geller's saloon, at Broome and Pitt streets, where she claims the alleged assault was committed on the night of March 26, but the Lawlor woman cannot be found to substantiate Miss Hannan's charges.

ROUNDMAN DAILEY.

It was a big room, lighted with two gas jets in the center. There were several tables and chairs scattered through the room. Geller claims now that it is a club-room, but Lizzie thought it was a private drinking-room.

"We didn't go out until nearly 9 o'clock," continued Mamie, with hesitation.

"Tell what happened," broke in her mother, who was present.

"LOCKED IN AND THE ROOM DARKENED."

"Well, after we had been there over an hour," the girl said, slowly, "Dailey went to the door and looked out. On his way back to me he turned out the gas jets and then came to the table again. I said, 'Don't turn out the lights. I don't want you to.'"

"He didn't answer me and I jumped up to run out. He caught me and pushed me back to the table. I screamed."

"Very loudly," the reporter asked.

"Why, yes; but no person came to help me. Mamie and I started out together, Lizzie said she hadn't heard the screams."

"I told Lizzie what had happened and she said she hadn't heard me or she would have come to my assistance, and I came home."

"Afterwards, when I told my mother, we agreed not to say anything about it, because it would ruin my reputation."

"That's so," interrupted Mrs. Hannan, "but don't you think Lizzie heard you scream?"

"Of course," answered Miss Hannan. "I don't understand her. She always seemed like a nice woman, and I went to her house often."

"She has lived with her father ever since she was divorced from her husband, Joe Hicke, who was a foreman on the dock. She took her maiden name after securing the divorce."

"Roundman Dailey's trouble grew out of his arresting Mrs. Hannan in front of her home on Monday night on a charge of disorderly conduct. She was locked up at the Delancey street station. Yesterday, when arraigned in the Essex Market Court before Justice Taintor, she turned on her accuser and denounced him for the alleged assault upon her daughter."

"She accused him of having taken Mamie to Geller's saloon in company with the Lawlor woman and a police sergeant, and of having, in her presence, forcibly accomplished the girl's ruin. She did not learn of the affair, she told Justice Taintor, until two weeks later, when Mamie made a confession."

"MRS. HANNAN COMPLAINED TO DAILEY'S WIFE."

"Then I went and saw Dailey," said Mrs. Hannan, "and he denied that he knew Mamie. The same evening a man came to my house and told me that Dailey wanted to see me at the Grand street ferry. I went there and he asked me to keep quiet about the matter, because it would ruin him if I talked about it."

"I told him that he did not think of that when he ruined my girl, and left him. A week ago Mamie took sick. I found out where Dailey lived and told his wife the whole story. She said she would make me tell him to his face, which she did. He was very angry."

"Last night she brought him to my house, and I repeated in her presence just what I had told her before. Dailey then shook his club in my face and threatened to arrest me if I made any more trouble for him. I told him I would have him punished, and then he arrested me."

"Mamie was sent for, and in court she corroborated her mother's story and detailed the circumstances of the alleged assault. Mrs. Hannan was allowed to go on her own recognizance until 3 o'clock to-day, while Roundman Dailey's arrest was ordered by Justice Taintor. He was committed to the police station in the custody of Capt. Kahane."

"THE GIRL'S OWN STORY OF THE ASSAULT."

Mamie was seen at her mother's flat, on the second floor of 318 Monroe street, this morning. She was preparing to go to the police station and was dressed in the same costume, she said, that she wore on the evening of March 26. Her hair was auburn and she had harmonized well with her light, cream-colored dress.

"The girl will be seventeen years old next October. She is remarkably bright, has light brown hair, blue eyes and a trim figure. Her eyes flashed angrily as she told of the alleged meeting with Dailey and the occurrences in Geller's saloon."

"I met Lizzie Lawlor at her flat at 23 Lewis street about 6 o'clock on Saturday evening, March 26," she began. "We started out for a walk immediately afterwards, and about a quarter after six passed the Delancey street station."

"I was slightly acquainted with Policeman Dailey, and he stepped up beside me as we were walking along the street."

"A sergeant of police with whom Lizzie was acquainted joined us. Dailey proposed that we go into Geller's saloon and have some beer. We all agreed to do so."

"When we got to the door Dailey said he

Jersey Democrats Expected to Instruct for Him.

Large Assemblage at the State Convention To-Day.

Gov. Abbott and Senator McPherson Two Delegates-at-Large.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)

TRENTON, N. J., May 25.—The Democratic State convention, to nominate delegates to the National Convention at Chicago, met here at noon to-day. It is one of the largest Conventions ever held in this State.

A great number of the delegates are enthusiastic for Cleveland, and it is probable that the delegates will go instructed to vote for his nomination at Chicago.

Judge Chancellor, of Jersey, was made temporary chairman, and M. T. Barrett, of Essex; T. E. Lane, of Hudson; J. H. Madison, of Somerset; Samuel Thompson, of Warren; and A. C. Warren, of Cumberland, were chosen Secretaries.

Judge Barrett made a long address, praising the Cleveland administration and reviewing the triumphs of the party.

After the call of delegations and appointment of committees a recess was taken until 2 o'clock.

The delegates-at-large will be elected immediately after re-convening.

It is considered to be settled that they will vote for Gov. Leavelle, of Indiana, United States Senator John H. McPherson, of Hudson; James Smith, Jr., of Essex; and Miles Ross, of Middlesex.

There was a spirited contest last night before Senator McPherson's name was placed on the list of delegates. He did not arrive until the last hour, and it was not until 11 o'clock that he was elected.

Flames Near the Consolidated Company's Giant Gasometer.

Tenants in Avenue C Tenements Flee in Fear of an Explosion.

Patients in the Health Department's Reception Hospital in Peril.

Fire broke out at 12:30 this afternoon in the Consolidated Gas Company's extensive works at sixteenth street and Avenue C. The fire was in a retort and purifying house at the upper end of the works.

Within a few feet of where the flames broke out is one of the largest gasometers in the city, containing hundreds of thousands of cubic feet of illuminating gas.

Two alarms were at once sent out by the police, and nine engines came promptly.

The streets were full of people from the surrounding tenement houses, who were in momentary fear of an explosion.

At 2 o'clock the flames were not yet under control. As far as was known at that hour no one was killed or injured.

The Board of Health's Reception Hospital for contagious diseases is near the works. The fire became very fierce and the officials at the hospital had fears for their patients.

An ambulance of the Health Department carrying small-pox patients to the hospital was stalled on Avenue C being unable to and not wishing to get through the police lines.
